column of The Enterprise Ledger last week paid his respects to a number of "rackets" or schemes which have been prevalent in this section during the past several weeks. We quote what he says about two of them:

"Some three or four weeks ago a party of men with town. These men were designed in snappy uniforms and prominently displayed signs proclaiming that they were promoting a campaign for safer driving and more rigid compliance with traffic regulations. The cline of police, doubtless thinking these men were identified with some State or National campaign, to the work. To make a long story short, what these men were days telephones began to ring and and whether or not they were working independent, not being affiliated with any organization were for the other of the other of notice of the propagation of the campaign and whether or not they were working independent, not being affiliated with any organization. The Clipper could use more advertising every week in the year, but we will have no part in schemes where the business people are being held up by these "white collar bandits." Local organizations who wish to sponsor some enterprise should have a thorough knowledge of the scheme before they take part in exploiting their home.

They say with Walpole, "Every man has his price." But they are wrong. The Clipper was approached on the last two rackets here only after all arrangements had been made and business men had been separated from their money. Both included advertisements from these business firms on a few hand bills which was not worth one-tenth the price charged. A local organization was supposed to get a cutt' in one of these schemes, but from what we can hear the percentage was so small that many were sorely disappointed. It always turns out that way.

In both instances we refer to "The Big Balloon Ascension" and "The Beauty Contest." Promoters of these schemes almost insulted us because we would not open five dollars worth of free advertising. They "gouge" business firms plenty and then try to "gouge" us for free publicity but we have learned better.

TNCLE NATCHEL'S right. Natural Chilean Nitrate is good for every crop you grow. It gives you; (1) Ideal, quick-acting nitrate to help make the finest crops that can be grown; (2) Nature's own balance and blend of protective elements to help correct soil deficiencies now or whenever they occur. There is double advantage in using Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda. Remember this when you think about fertilizer.

TROY, ALABAMA

February 23, 1939.

TO THE FERTILIZER TRADE:

Gentlemen:

Five years ago this company determined to place at the disposal of Alabama's farmers "THE BEST FERTILIZERS OBTAINABLE" for producing the best crops and to make these fertilizers available at fair and reasonable prices.

AFTER FIVE YEARS of hardships-hard knocks, unfair competitive practices and unjust criticisms, we have emerged victorious. Comparative field tests-both private and public, have been made with our fertilizers by our customers, friends and competitors—and the results of these comparative field tests prove
